Tenth Anniversary of Sigma, Tenth Book in the Sigma Force series: THE SIXTH EXTINCTION

Release Date: August 12th, 2014

In my biggest book to date in scope and excitement, Commander Gray Pierce and Painter Crowe battle on opposite sides of the planet to save it from a brilliant madman.

The new novel is full of frightening facts about who we are as a species today and where we're headed. It also delves into historical mysteries going back to a time when Antarctica was once green and full of life.

But most of all, it's a nonstop thrill ride like no other. I knew I had to make this tenth Sigma book spectacular, touching upon everything that I love about the Sigma series: historical mysteries, cutting-edge science...and yes, strange and wondrous landscapes full of the monstrous and the beautiful.

In THE SIXTH EXTINCTION, I unveil new hidden worlds found on our planet: one born out of the ancient past, another that offers a view into our future.

As a newsletter exclusive, here's one of those species from the ancient past, a deadly little organism that you'll encounter in the new book (along with many others). This sneak peak into this book's bestiary is only available here. Feel free to print it up and I'd be happy to sign it at one of my tour stops (see my appearances below).

Authors United for Veterans

After coming home from the USO Tour described above, I knew I wanted to continue to help those men and women in the Armed Forces who bravely keep our country safe, in whatever capacity I could. For many veterans returning home often leads to financial hardships, and the fine people at USA Cares are there to support and counsel them. For every dollar they raise, ninety cents ends up in the pocket of a veteran. So please check out this wonderful organization and click here to learn how you can help, too. Thanks!
